SCRIPT/NARRATION Online a lot of people bully, peer pressure, cause fraud, and even stalk you		In the early 2000s, the frontier of the internet was rapidly changing. Nobody knew much about digital citizenship. A girl who grew up not too far from where I live was excited to get her own MySpace account. She talked with her mother about this idea to get permission, and her mom was very involved. Megan developed a friendship online with a boy. Within a short time this friendship that once turned Megan into a happy, excited 14-year-old quickly turned her sad, moody, and depressed. You see,		Megan's mother did everything the experts said to do and tried to protect her child, someone setting up a false account for a fictional character was able to urge Megan to hurt herself, changing her family forever. This tragic ending could have been prevented, but it's easy to forget that we have to be extra careful with the internet.

SCRIPT/NARRATION The Cyberbullying research center states 34% of teens are cyberbullied and 15% of teens are the Cyberbullies. Clearly, almost 20 years after Megan Meier's unnecessary death, we still have some work to do.		Digital citizenship is an issue directly related to Family and Consumer Sciences. One of the FCS National Standards: 13.2.5 is to Explain the effects of personal standards and behaviors on interpersonal relationships. As humans, our actions impact our relationships with others. When we post something online, it does not only impact us, whether that is in a good way or a bad way.		Family, Career, and Community Leaders of America chapters can address this topic to help educate the members and Community as well.

Videos just like the one you are watching now could help us spread the word of the importance of this issue to reach those outside of our schools as well as help our members better understand . The issue of digital citizenship impacts everyone.		We need to help parents to be informed of dangers through families first projects in our FCCLA chapters and to help the community to be informed of the issues through the FCCLA National Program Community service, where members could create a public service announcement designed to help parents understand how to protect their children and the importance of monitoring their behavior.		It has been said that we cannot always teach someone something, but often our interactions will plant a seed that sprouts later. By discussing this topic and promoting higher standards for positive, professional internet use, we can plant these seeds to impact the future.
